Bessbrook Co. Armagh.

John Davis 14-12-2014

I John Davis started work in the Ardmore Hotel Newry back in 1968 to 1972 as a hotel porter. 1969 the Northern Ireland Troubles had started Ardmore Hotel was bombed, this bomb went off when I was in the hotel, luck was on my side that day, that was my first experience of the troubles.

Then I started a new job as a medical orderly at the border frontline Hospital Daisy Hill Newry Co. Down back in 1973 I was there for 28 years where I witnessed terrible and dreadful horrifying incidents which took place in South Armagh and South Down.

I work in Accident and Emergency, Operating Theatres, you were in frontline all the time with other members of staff.

We carried out our work from all departments of the hospital with professional skill compassion and dignity to look after those who came through its door from bombings and shooting incidents. Many lives were saved as a result of their good work, it was good team work with all the staff. I would be also on night duty, you also got incidents in the dead of night, my way of dealing with all that happen on that day or night I would pray for them and their families. I would have tears, life seemed so very very cruel god bless them all, what was it all for. Life is very short.

There was — no such thing as counselling back then you just got on with it, they were very bad and dark years.
